BORDER CROSSING A NOVEL

Pinata Books. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 144 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.6in. x 0.4in. An entertaining novel about a young girl's search for her Mexican roots. When Ceci Alvarez decides to spend time thinking about who she is and avoid taking yoga or reading books out of the Self-Help section when she grows up, she knows certain things. She is twelve going on thirteen. She is four feet and nine inches tall. She is named Cecilia Maryann Alvarez after her grandmothers, one name English and one name Spanish, which made sense, since one of my grandmas spoke English and one spoke Spanish. But the things the teenager does not know will send her riding the rails from Los Angeles to Tijuana, Mexico to learn about her father's family. One day while in her Nana's room, Ceci discovers a table brimming with old photographs of people she does not know and places she has never been. Those pictures were probably the first things in the whole house which had ever interested me. This extraordinary find and the rapid Spanish of her grandmothers' accusation that her father is embarrassed to be Mexican, propel Ceci on an odyssey that leads her from the trail of photographs to a new discovery. Tony, a lively young teen Ceci meets on the train, leads her from one country to the next, and challenges her to see Mexico as green and brown. Its little villages with big farms, and lots of grass, and towns where electricity is something not everyone has. Its spicy chilies, juicy tomatoes, and light tortillas. Its music, and laughter and pride. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg, OR, La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
