Not illustrated. 1911 Excerpt: . some uncertainty because of the fact that the true distances of the stars whose proper motions are used in the analyses are, in general, very imperfectly known. On the other hand, the spectrograph gives us the velocity of a star in the line of sight, a velocity which, in stars possessing good spectral lines, is accurate within a few tenths of a kilometer per second, and which is entirely independent of the distance of the star from our system. For this reason it should be possible to determine from the radial velocities of a considerable number of stars well distributed over the entire sky a much more accurate value of the amount and the direction of the movement of the solar system through space. For a complete solution of this problem, at which Dr. Campbell and his associates have been working during the past 15...
